Fieldwork & Research Experiences

- Turkey and Switzerland Comparative Veganism Research Project: As part of a compilation book project we are co-publishing as the Vegan Research Network, we are conducting semi-structured interviews with vegans in Turkey and Switzerland with my colleague İlker İnmez, an academic living in Switzerland. We are trying to reveal the state of veganism in two different countries in a multidimensional way and the internal dynamics of each movement (with its conflicts and compromises). We have interviewed dozens of people in both countries. The research is ongoing. We plan to publish it in the first quarter of 2026.
- Animal-Based Product Commercials Research Project (10015028): During my master's degree program, as part of my Popular Culture course in the Folklore department, I conducted a discourse analysis of advertising films released over a 10-year period by 12 major brands selling animal products (cheese, meat, eggs, etc.) in Turkey. Based on the patterns that emerged, I identified specific discursive themes. This research was transformed into an academic publication titled "The Speciesist Face of Popular Culture: Nonhuman Animals in Animal-Based Product Commercials."
- DOA Consulting: I conducted a 10-day fieldwork project across 14 villages in Muğla for the ESI/RAP of an Enerjisa wind turbine project.
- ProjeTAS: I participated in a fieldwork project and conducted semi-structured qualitative interviews via telephone for an ASKİ drinking water supply project in Ankara.

- Veganism and Health Research Project (10015004): During my master's degree program, as part of my Health and Culture (Ethnomedicine) course in the Folklore department, I conducted semi-structured interviews with 15 vegans to understand their relationship with health and illness, health institutions, and traditional/modern health concepts. As a result of my research, I produced an academic article titled "The Role of Ethics in the Transformation of Medicine: Veganism, Health Practices and New Paradigms."
- DOA Consulting: I carried out an additional 15-day fieldwork project across 25 villages in Muğla for the Enerjisa wind turbine project.
- DOA Consulting: I completed a 1-month fieldwork assignment for a high-speed train project on the Yozgat-Kayseri-Nevşehir route.
- BA Thesis Fieldwork: For my Bachelor's Thesis, titled "Being a Horse Among Humans: An Ethnological Study on the Human-Nonhuman Animal Relationship in an Equestrian Club," I conducted 10 months of immersive ethnographic fieldwork.
- Visual Ethnography Project (HLK-402): As part of my Visual Ethnography course, I conducted a two-month documentary fieldwork project titled "Everyone Knows Everyone Here!" at a flea market where I had previously conducted qualitative research as part of another course, in collaboration with a classmate.
- Qualitative Methods Research Project (İLE-222): For my Research Methods course in the Double Major Program, I designed and conducted a two-month qualitative study on consumption habits at the flea market where I had previously conducted fieldwork.
- Photo-ethnography Research Project (HLK-411): I completed a 1-month photo-ethnographic study for the Visual Documentation in Folklore course, focusing on the multispecies relationships within a fish farm.
- Urban Anthropology Research Project (ANT-424): For my Urban Anthropology course, I conducted a three-month qualitative fieldwork project involving semi-structured interviews with a total of 40 flea market vendors, focusing on consumption, spatial organization, and social relations. This work resulted in an academic publication titled "Flea Markets in Economic Crisis, Migration, and Urban Redevelopment: The Case of Ankara Flea Market."
